MEMORANDUM FOR: DDI
FROM: Director of Central Intelligence
SUBJECT: SS-X-20 Missile

I am interested in knowing how we think the SS-X-20 is launched from the erector launcher. I understand the missile is lifted into a vertical position. How do the Soviets prevent the blast of the missile from upsetting the whole launcher transporter? Do they have to spend considerable time jacking up the transporter launcher or otherwise securing it so that it doesn't move?

MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Intelligence

FROM: Director of Central Intelligence

I note that SEATO fades out of existence on the 30th of June. Would this be a good occasion to have a PDB article on alignments in Southeast Asia, commenting on the demise of SEATO and the continuance of ASEAN?
